PLUNGER GRANNAN LOSES.

JOCKEY CLUB UPRELD IN RULING HIM OFF THE TRACK

Justice Caborne Beeldes Against the Application for an Jajanetion, and Says
That by Giving $500 to Jockey Fred Taral Grannan Violated the Eules.

The Jockey Club and the Westchester Racing Association won a signal vic-tory yesterday when Justice Osberne, in the supreme Court, Brooklyn, rendered an opin-ion, denying the application of Charles R. Grannan, the well-known plunger and frequenter of race tracks, for the continuation of n irjunction, restraining the stewards of the Jockey Club in ruling him off the tracks under their control.

In the papers which were submitted to Jusviolated the rules of the Jockey Club in making a present to Jockey Fred Taral of $500 He admitted that such was the case and Gen. B. F. Tracy, his counsel, contended that the club had no right to rule him off the track on that account.

In his decision Justice Osborne reviews the entire case, the testimony showing that Grannan was warned and ruled off the turf on September 28, 1896. He states that the club had on May 1 adopted these rules:

No jorkey shall bet on any race, except through the owner of and on the horse which he rides, and any jockey who shall be proved to the satisfa tion of the stewards to have any interest in any race torse, or to have engaged in any betting transaction or to have received presents from sersons other than the owner, will have his license at once repart owner or trainer of any horse in which a jockey possesses any interest, or making any bet with or on behalf of any jockey, or otherwise aid-

If any person give an offer, or promise, directly or indirectly, any bribe, is any form, to any person serse or to any trainer, jockey, or agent, or to any person having charge of or access to any race horse, has every person so offending shall be ruled off. Every person ruled off the course of a recognized force.

When there is no specified penalty for violation of the rules of racing, or of the regulations of the course, stewards have power to disquality, fine, suspend, expe. from, or rule off.

course, stewards have power to disquality, fine, suspend, expe from, or rule off.

Justice Osborne says that when the rules of the Jockey Club were adopted they received wide publicity, and that the stewards published and sent out thousands of copies of the rules, and they were conspicuously posted at the Coney Island Jockey Club and other tracks in the vicinity of New York.

"The plaintiff," says Justice Osborne. "was a part owner of race horses; he had access to the blaces where these placards were posted, and it is difficult to credit his statement that he was ignorant of said rules." Justice Osborne says that the plaintiff seeks to have the defendant enjoined from enforcing the rules, claiming he had no knowledge of the one prohibiting the glying of presents to jockeys that it had not been enforced and was a dead letter; that he had no notice from the stawards of the Jub of any Juage against him, and that the action of the stewards was arbitrary, unjust, and illegal.

"Printiff's allegation that this rule was a dead letter," says the Justice, "and had been therefore openly violated, is denied under oath by each of the stewards, who severally depose that the violation of this rule by the plaintiff was the first that had come to their nutice.

"The contention that plantiff was entitled denose that the violation of this rule by the plaintiff was the first that had come to their nettics.

"The contention that plantiff was entitled to notice and hearing on the charge against him has, in my opinion, no merit. It is to be borne in mind that plaintiff was not a member of the Jockey Club or of the Westchester Racing, Association, nor was he possessed of any vested right in either of said corporations that could be affected by his being warned and rules off the turfund, therefore, the various decisions involving the question or the expulsion of members from liubs have no application here. It is difficult to see how whatever rights plaintiff had were in any degree affecte, by lack of notice of charges and a hearing thereon, in the face of his admission to the stewards and his admission in the papers herein that he had given a present of $500 to Jockey Taral."

In conclusion Justice Osborne says: "Under the circumstances I fail to see that the section of the stewards of the Jockey Club in passing the resolution complained of was either arbitrary, unjust, or lifegal. Full notice of the rules had been given to the general public and all reasonable steps taken to acquaint the public therewith. The rules themselves were salutary, and it was the duty of the stewards to enforce them. Plaintiff having admired his violation of the rule, the sie wards were in duty bound to qualish such violation: the gunishment was a matter resting solely within their reasonable discretion, and I cannot say that the penalty imposed was excessive.

The case will now probably be brought to the Appellate Division of the supreme Court.

Woodfalo, St. Louis, Cincinnati, Louisville, Toledo, Corcoran of Boston, who is engaged in forming the association, speaks of its objects as follows:

"The proposed National Cycle Racing Association will comprise in its membership the managers of all the leading cycle tracks of the country. It is not the object of this organization to antagonise the League of American Wheelmeh, but rather to work in channels that will meet the hearty approval of the league and give a stimulus to cycle racing. Specialties will be made of long distance racing paced racing and cycling novelties that will entertain the public asd add increased enthusiasm. Through this organization professional cycle racers will have a much better show than at present. Amateur racing will be a secondary consideration with the association. Already the leading track owners of the country have expressed their willingness to enter the combination and do all possible to make the movement a success."

While it is claimed that no steps will be taken to attempt to assume control over professional racing, the movements of the new association will be watched with consider able interest. "The proposed National Cycle Racing Asso

Forty or fifty ladies met in the rooms of the Brooklyn Whist Club on Pierrepont street yesterday morning and organized the Women's Whist Club of Brooklyn. The meeting was called to order at 10:30 o'clock, with Mrs. E. T. Baker in the chair, and about two hours were spent in discussing plans and principles. A committee of three from another women's whist club wished to restrict the membership to those who adopted a certain system of play, but the new organization thought it much better to fol-low the example of the American Whiat League. which has steadily set its face against indorsing any authority or approving any system, leaving its members free to play whatever style of game its members free to hay whatever style it gains seems to them the best.

It was finally settled that the annual dues should be $5, initiation fee $2, and that meetings would be at 10 o'clock Wednesday mornings, at the Brooklyn Whist Club. Owners of Craft and Non-Owners at Odds-Compromise Ticket Selected. There were storm clouds and rumblings of internal strife at the annual meeting of the Brooklyn Yacht Club, which was held at 5 Willoughby street, Brooklyn, last night, The trouble began a year ago with the resignation of all the flag officers, and although apparently the breach was healed afterward, the meet ing last night proved that the acrimo-nious feeling had only been alumber ing for a twelfth-month. For some years there has been more or less trouble between yacht owners and non-yacht owners, and it has been repeatedly alleged that the latter have managed the politics of the club in a manner that compelled the yacht owners either to agree with them, haul down the club burgee, or quietly submit to the ruling of the political faction.

It is claimed by the yacht owners that Commodore Steele does not own a yacht, as is prescribed by the by-laws. When he was elected to the office last year he owned a small craft, which was however, sold before the yachting season opened. Yacht owners in the club have groken of the ineligibility of Commodore Steele for renomination to the office and have openly declared that Vice-Commodore Constant, who lowered his flag and allowed the Commodore to send the insignal of his rank to the truck of the Aliris all last season, should be entitled to the highest honor that the club could pay him. As an additional reason, they say that Vice-Commodore Constant and Fleet Captain Kilbourne were instrumental in arranging last year the details of the only cruise that was held by the Brookiyn Club for several seasons. The Vice-Commodore, it is said, made bimself obnoxious to the Nominating Committee by introducing an amendment to abelish the office of President, and in retailation his name was left out in making up the official ticket. His amendment was lost, as was also another one presented by one of the trustees, to raise the annual dues from $12 to $16.

Each candidate for office was voted for separately. Commodore Steele's name was laid over until next meeting, to give him an opportunity to buy a yacht. KNICKERBUCKER A. C. SPORTS. Banketball and Water Polo Prove Interesting. The Knickerbooker A. C. held an interesting entertainment at the club house, Madison avenue and Forty-fifth street, yesterday afternoon and evening. A well arranged card of artistic, social, and sporting features attracted a large gathering of members and guests, the latter division including many women admirers of An exhibition of oil paintings and water col-ors was followed by music in the drawing rooms at 3 o'clock. This paved the way for a pleasant show in the theatre at 4 o'clock and then there was a prolonged recess for dinner.

The two games of backet ball furnished plenty of excitement for those present in the evening. The first game was between the second team of the club and a team from the Young Men's Institute. The home team outclassed its opponent and won by the score of 10 points to 1. The second game between the first team and the Central branch Y.M.C.A. of Brookiyn was by far the most interesting game played at the club this season. It was a nip-and-tuck fight from beginning to end. The teams were so evenly matched that it was only a question of which could stand the strain the longest. The Brooklyn team finally won. The score was: Centrals, d points: Knickerbocker, 5. The teams lined up as follows:

Yale Befeated at Hockey.

The announcement that Yale University hockey team would play a match game with the team of the New York A. C. at the St. Nicholas Skating Rink last night drew a larger crowd than usual to that place. The game was an interesting one in which brilliant plays were many. The New Mayen players understood the game thoroughly, and although they did not game thoroughly, and although they did not win they kept their opponents on the move throughout. The local lads used their experience to good advantage and played well together.

Soon after play began Fenwick secured the puck and scored a goal for New York. In less than twenty seconds after Begert shot another. Yale managed to score by the puck striking a New York player's skate. Fenwick and Fry each scored for New York a few moments before time for the first half was called. In the second half New York had everything their own way and scored three more goals. The final score was: New York A. C., 7; Yale, 1. The line-up:

section of Brooklyn, and its cosey club house on Jersey avenue in the Twenty-sixth ward has been the scene of many an interesting encounter for fistic honors.

The trustess of the club recently completed a deal with the Pequod Club whereby the latter will take possession of the club house and its furnishings. The consideration is kept a secret, but it is understood that the Pequod Club assumes all the liabilities of the Brighton A. C., including a $3,000 mortgage.

The Pequod Club has about 150 members, and its cyoling division has been the most prominent feature. It is believed that athletics in general will hereafter receive their share of attention. The club's new quarters is a two-story frame building, and includes a well-equipped gymnasium.

THE COFFEE-SUGAR WAR.

ARBUCKLES CARRY THE FIGHT INTO THE OHIO COURTS.

As Stockholders in the Woolson Sping Company They Ask for a Received on the Ground That the Sugar Trust Is Mismanning the Business, Toleno, O., Jan. 13. -At noon to-day John P Kumler and Alexander Smith, attorneys of Thomas J. Kuhn of Cleveland and Arbura Bros. of New York, minority stockholders, find a petition before Judge Morris, asking in receiver for the Woolson Spice Company and an injunction that practically ties up the entire plant, Judge Morris caused a temporary in straining order to issue, and will hear the motion for the appointment of a receiver on Jan. 25.

The petition names the Woolson Spice Company, its directors, and the American Nagar Refining Company as defendants, and says that the amount of the stock of the Woolson Spice Company is $300,000, of which 1,800 shares are outstanding: that Thomas J. Kuhn and Arbuckle Bros., jointly, own one share since March 23, 1893, and the latter sixty shares since her, 31, 1896; that the American Sugar Refining Company controls the price of sugar in the United States; that the Arbuckles have been in competition with the Woolson Company in the coffee business, and they also sold sugar bengat from the so-called trust.

It is further stated that early in 1896 the Ar. buckles started a sugar refinery in Brooklyn, and that thereupon the trust went into the end. and that thereupon the trust went into the estafee business, equipped an idle factory, when proved unprofitable without a trade hame; that the trust purchased on Dec. 16 all the stock but sixty-one shares of the Woolson Spice Company, and announced that it would night, ate the Woolson plant in the sole interests of the American Sugar Refining Company. Here it is alleged that the trust gave out, in purchasing the Woolson stock, that it was to be used solely to enable the trust to crush the Arbuckles, and that as soon as that should have been accomplished it would be sold back to the original holders at a reduced rate.

Continuing, the petition recites that the directors of the Woolson Company having resigned, the plaintiffs had no governing board to appeal to, that in the face of a rising market the trust has made a reduction of two cents in the roasted coffee, and that the plant is now being operated at a loss of $1,000 per day.

The Court is asked to restrain the defendants from acting as directors, from registering its transfer of the 1,739 shares of stock and from voting the same, and from refusing to allow the plaintiff's attorneys to inspect the books of the Woolson company. Finally, the Court is asked to appoint a receiver for the property.

The news from Toledo, O., that the Arbuck Brothers, the big coffee dealers of Browlip had applied to have a receiver appointed to the Woolson Spice Company of that city, part of the movement in the war between it sugar Trust and the Arbuckler, we not unexpected. The war was started an attempt by the Arbuckles to get some of the sugar to the sugar to the sugar to the sugar to the sugar part of the sugar pa convenience to the busine and the work of having goods of various kinds done up in selling packages was so attractive that this way of preparing goods has spread into such large preportions that to-day about 60 per cent. of everything a grocer sells is done up ready to hand to his customer. This insures an understool weight of goods, and saves both money, time and waste over the old way.

As a natural development the Arbuckles began some time ago to pack sugar for the grocery trade, doing it up by means of their automation machines in packages of such sizes as were most convenient for sale. Their machines did this at such a small expense that the Arbuckles were able to sell the packages of sugar at about the usual barrel rate, and the result was that their saics grew until they claimed that they were the biggest single customer that bought of the Sugar Trust.

Basing their right to some rebate in price upon this assertion, the Arbuckles applied several months ago to the Sugar Trust people for a reduction in the price of sugar below what other persons were paying. The Sugar Trust people replied that they remained claim to business support lay in the fact that they kept their prices low and treated all their customers allke, and that they would not make any concessions even to the Arbuckles.

"If that is the case," the Arbuckles are said to have replied, "then we will build our own sugar works and do the refining ourselves."

"Go ahead," said the sugar peoole.

Rumore of this threat of the Arbuckles gained currency last summer, but there seemed to certainty that the Arbuckles meant business until about a munth or so ago. At that time there appeared an advertisement since by them seven in that they wanted a practical sugar reflecting Rumors of this threat of the Arbuckles gained currency last summer, but there seemed to certainty that the Arbuckles meant business multi about a munth or so ago. At that time there appeared an advertisement signed by them saving that they wanted a practical sugar refined. Then it was announced that they had bought a plot of ground in Brooklyn and were about to build a sugar refinery capable of refining 2,000 barrels of sugar a day. This seemed to mean real war, and the Sugar Trust, led by the Havemeyers, were not idle.

Presently it became known that the trust proposed to carry the war right into the Arbuckle camp by going into the coffee business. The Woolson Spice Company of roledo was one of the biggest of the Arbuckles' competitors in the packing and selling of roasted coffee. About the time that the Arbuckles made their first move toward building a sugar refinery it became known that the sugar people had secured by purchase the entire capital stock of the Woolson Spice Company, with the exception of sixty shares. This gave them more than a controlling interest in the company, and as soon sat they got possession that fact was made evident by a reduction of ½ cent a pound, which the Woolson Spice Company made in the price of coffee. This reduction was met at once by another the next week of the same amount. This too was promptly met.

The war in prices went on until altegether the Woolson Spice Company reduced the price of three cents a pound, and coffee men declare that they must be now selling at a less. The Arbuckles met every reduction ercept the last one of one-haif cent a pound, and the trade expects to see them meet this. Meantime there maining sixty shares of the stock of the Woolson Spice Company. The Arbuckles had bought it to use as a weapon in the fight.

While all of this was beld by G. M. Acklin, the held on until $1,000 a share was offered in the sugar Trust that he had received an offer from the Arbuckles had bought it to use as a weapon in the fight.

While all of this was coing on there we
